and deemed filed pursuant to Rule 14a-6 of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934

Subject Company: Dell Technologies Inc.
(Commission File No. 001-37867)

The following table illustrates an implied valuation of Dell Technologies Inc. (the "Company") based on a range of trading prices for the Company's Class V Common Stock ("DVMT"). This information is being provided to assist DVMT stockholders in evaluating the Company's previously announced Class V transaction in which DVMT holders may elect to receive in exchange for each DVMT share either (i) a specified number of shares of the Company's Class C Common Stock based on a certain exchange ratio or (ii) $120 in cash, without interest, subject to a $14 billion cap. The table below assumes that the maximum amount of cash of $14 billion is elected by DVMT stockholders. To the extent less than $14 billion of cash is elected, the exchange ratio will decrease and the implied value per DVMT share and of the Company will be different from those set forth in the table below. A table illustrating the range of possible exchange ratios, assuming certain DVMT trading prices and cash election amounts as of the election deadline, is set forth in Appendix A. This table is being provided for illustrative purposes only to demonstrate the mathematical relationship between certain inputs using hypothetical assumptions and hypothetical methodologies which the Company believes to be reasonable for this purpose. However, investors should select their own assumptions and methodologies and should not rely on the ones used herein. This table is not intended to be, nor is it, a guarantee or prediction of any possible outcome.

For example, investors should be aware that the table below reflects a sum-of-the-parts analysis, which is one of a number of available valuation methodologies that investors could choose to apply. The use of alternative valuation methods (such as a discounted cash flow analysis or a peer trading analysis) could result in materially different implied valuations compared to the information set forth below. There is no assurance that investors will value the Company based on a sum-of-the parts analysis or that the market price of the Company's Class C common stock will reflect such a valuation method if the Class V transaction is completed.

(1) For illustrative purposes only and assumes for simplicity that the trading price of DVMT shares reflects the value of Class C shares, taking into account only the relevant exchange ratio. However, the trading price of DVMT shares is more complex and depends on various additional factors that have not been reflected in the analysis above, including but not limited to the demand and depth for tracking stocks such as DVMT, relative economic and voting rights of DVMT stockholders, any discount attributable to uncertainty as to whether the Class V transaction will be consummated and any discount to present value. If these additional factors were taken into account the trading price could be materially different than assumed herein.

The Company makes no representation as to the trading value of the Class C shares as such value will be determined by the market and could be volatile. The opening price of the Class C common stock upon listing on the New York Stock Exchange and its trading price thereafter will depend on various factors, which are set forth in the Company's proxy statement/prospectus, dated October 19, 2018, relating to the Class V transaction (as amended and supplemented from time to time), which is available on the website of the Securities and Exchange Commission. Many of these factors are not within the Company's control. The Company cannot assure you that the Class C common stock will trade at or above the implied value per Class C share that is indicated in the table or, even if such trading price is achieved, that it will continue to trade at or above such price.

(2) Pro forma shares outstanding using the treasury stock method.

(3) Based on 330.7 million VMware shares held, 131.3 million Pivotal shares held and 70.0 million Secureworks shares held. Pivotal ownership excludes shares held by VMware. Attributes 100% of the publicly traded value of the Company's economic ownership in the underlying publicly traded subsidiary of the Company, based on the closing price of the publicly traded class of stock of such subsidiary on the applicable stock exchange on November 30, 2018. Assuming that investors were to use a sum-of-the parts analysis to value the Company, there is no assurance that the market price of the Company's Class C common stock would reflect such undiscounted values for the Company's publicly traded subsidiaries, and the market price could be materially lower.

(4) Includes $5 billion of new debt incurred to fund the cash consideration payable in the Class V transaction. Pro forma net debt has not been updated to reflect balance sheet as of November 2, 2018 pending public disclosure of Pivotal and Secureworks financial results.

(5) LTM non-GAAP net income and levered free cash flow are calculated on a pro forma basis, reflecting the estimated incremental interest expense associated with $5 billion of new debt.

(6) LTM financials reflect results for the last twelve months ended August 3, 2018. LTM financials have not been updated to reflect results for the last twelve months ended November 2, 2018 pending public disclosure of Pivotal and Secureworks financial results. Non-GAAP net income, levered free cash flow and Adjusted EBITDA are non-GAAP measures. For a reconciliation to the nearest comparable GAAP measure, please see the Company's filings with the Securities and Exchange Commission, including the proxy statement/prospectus, dated October 19, 2018, relating to the Class V transaction.
